

RUSH WORK AT GARRICK.

Theater Will Look Like New For Ingersoll Opening.

Remodeling of the new Garrick theater, formerly the Grand, is being rushed along as fast as carpenters, masons, painters and other decorators can accomplish it, that the doors may be open to the public on schedule time, with the thrilling military drama, "Brother Officers," by William Ingersoll and a strong company.

The decoration of walls and ceiling, the widening of aisles, the enlarging of the orchestra, increasing the space on the stage, remodelling of boxes, and a general beautifying of the entire interior of this once popular old playhouse will make of the new Garrick a practically new and up-to-date theater.

The following members of the new company are expected to reach Salt Lake Saturday, when active rehearsing for the first production will begin: Walter R. Seymour, Henry Crosby, J. D. Herblin, Albert Peters, Wilson Day, Joseph Byron Totten, Miss Frances Neilson, Miss Margaret Dills, Miss Jessie E. Fringle, Miss Helen Collier and Miss Adelaide Anshutz.
