The bill at the Mission (the theatre different) this week comprises two of the best vaudeville acts ever seen at this house and three reels of pictures not previously shown in the city.

The headliner, the Gypsy Duo, presents a musical, singing and scenic act of a high and elevating character. This team brings its own scenery and the musical specialty has been given exceptionally pleasing reception wherever shown. Baby Gladys Eastman, who hails direct from Chicago, offers a novel entertainment in the form of a singing and dancing act. She is but ten years of age, but gives a finished and artistic touch to her work and the dexterity displayed is remarkable. The pictures comprise: "The Cabin Boy," a beautiful story of the sea; "A Conspiracy Against the King," a spirited tale of old England; "The Tobacco Industry," showing the different stages of tobacco culture, from the planting of the seeds to the finished cigar, and two highly entertaining and clever comedy pictures.

The Herald-Republican has made arrangements with the Mission theatre whereby the pictures may be seen free. It is a simple plan. Every reader of The Herald-Republican who will read the rules of the contest and then read the want ad pages of this issue may win a pair of seats absolutely free for any matinee performance during the week of October 22-28. The number of seats is unlimited and every reader who complies with the terms of the contest will get a pair.

In some want ad on the classified pages of The Herald-Republican this morning will be found the letter "M" in this wise (M). In some other want ad will be found the letter "I" like this (I). In another (S) and so on with the other letters that comprise the word "Mission." Read the want ads and find the eight letters that form the word MISSION; each of the letters will be in parenthesis. Paste these letters on the coupon below and bring it to the business office of The Herald-Republican any time after 8:30 o'clock Sunday morning and get your tickets. There are tickets for everybody that fills out properly the attached coupon. There are no blanks and no expense attached to the arrangement. The Herald-Republican bears all the expense for its readers.
