

'Denver & Rio Grande'

Movie Notables Arrive For Premiere in S. L.

The "Premiere Special" had pulled into Salt Lake City Tuesday—all set for the second world premiere of "Denver and Rio Grande" at the Utah Theater.

Arriving on Denver and Rio Grande Western Railroad Co. tracks from Denver, the "Special" brought Gov. J. Bracken Lee, who boarded the train in Price, his home town, and Wilson McCarthy, native Utahn and president of the railroad. Nat Holt, who has added the western railroad movie to his film achievements, and Harry David, former Salt Lake theater executive, who was the producer's special assistant, were also aboard.

Stars of the movie here for the "second premiere" (the first was in Denver) include Laura Elliott, a Hollywood new find; Forrest Tucker, Zasu Pitts, Tony Romano and the Tailor Maids.

The luminaries Tuesday toured Kennecott copper mines at Bingham, were guests of the Salt Lake Rotary Club at noon in Hotel Utah and were to participate in an afternoon parade.

Mr. McCarthy commented: "We of the Rio Grande are mighty proud of our part in this production, which we think is a tribute to the West, its pioneers and also to our own railroad."

Glade Welcomes Luminaries

Mayor Earl J. Glade welcomes "Denver and Rio Grande" movie people to S. L. He chats with Forrest Tucker and a "Tailor Maid."