

Movie Stars Will Arrive

Telling a story of the roaring '70s in the Rockies, "Colorado Territory," new Warner Brothers picture starring Joel McCrea and Virginia Mayo, is being given a "Rocky mountain premiere" in both Salt Lake City and Denver. Linked by the Denver & Rio Grande railroad, whose early history figures in the film, the two cities are giving an all-out welcome to blond Virginia Mayo, who will appear in person in Denver and at the Utah theater here Saturday, June 4.

The role of the frontier girl falls in love with outlaw McQueen, played by McCrea something different for the beauty whose curves dressed Danny Kaye's technicolor Gold hits.

With her husband, Broadway star and screen actor Michael O'Shea, Miss Mayo will arrive Salt Lake June 4 to participate in local activities. She will appear on the Utah theater during the day and at two evening performances.
